A preface is considered the proper thing in a new book; the object being to give the reader some idea of its contents. But the Bromley Directory has now been ten years before the public, therefore cannot be looked upon as new, but a new number of a series coming out in yearly parts with additions and corrections.

That the present Directory for 1875 will be found more interesting than its predecessors we will not venture to say, but in justice to ourselves we must state that no pains have been spared to make it as nearly as possible correct, and thus enhance its usefulness, and consequently its value, which we have set down at One Shilling, or One Shilling and Twopence per post. That is our price, though many say it is worth double the money. But we are content while the purchasers are.

And remain,

Very respectfully,

THE COMPILER.

BROMLEY

Is a market town, 10 miles from London Bridge, and 14 from Sevenoaks, on the road between London and Hastings, in the hundred of Ruxley, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone, Diocese of Canterbury, and in the Western Division of the County. The town is supposed to have derived its name from the quantity of broom with which, in former years, the neighbourhood abounded. The manor was conferred by Ethelbert, King of Kent, on the Bishops of Rochester, who had a palace here, which having fallen into decay, was pulled down by Bishop Thomas, and re-built in 1777. The residence, which is pleasantly situate about a quarter mile from the town, underwent extensive alterations during its occupation by the late Coles Child, Esq., and is now occupied by his widow. In the gardens of the palace was anciently an oratory, much resorted to on account of certain indulgences granted by Lucas, legate of Pope Sixtus IV., to all who should offer up their devotions there, during Pentecost; and near it was a well of mineral water, similar in its properties to the water at Tunbridge, but more strongly impregnated. This well was for a considerable time in great repute; but the oratory becoming dilapidated after the Reformation, the well was choked up and the efficacy of its water forgotten, till in 1756, it re-gained its former celebrity. The church of SS Peter and Paul is an ancient structure, having nave and aisles, but no chancel. The living is a perpetual curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester, in the gift of the Bishop of Worcester. It contains various interesting monuments, among which are those of several of the bishops of Rochester. Over the communion table is a handsome stained glass window. In 1830, side and front galleries were erected and 437 additional seats were obtained, 350 of which were free. The church has a low embattled tower at the west end, and an excellent peal of eight bells. A new organ, of greater power than the old one, and containing the most modern improvements, has recently been presented to the parish church by E. H. Scott, Esq., of Sundridge Park. A special service, in which the prominent feature was music, was held in the evening of November the 25th, 1874, to commemorate the occasion. The new church hymn book, which is now being used in most of the neighbouring churches, was also introduced at the same time. The register dates from the year 1682. The living is now held by the Rev. Arthur Gresley Hellicar, M.A. A chapel-of-ease to the parish church, was opened, on May 9th, 1872, under the Licence of His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury. The Wesleyans hold their services in a School-Chapel recently built, situate between the town and the railway station. There is also a Congregational chapel, Baptist chapel, and a Gospel hall. The church of St. Mary's, for the hamlet of Plaistow, is about half-a-mile from the town: the Rev. W. Hodgson, M.A. is the present vicar. In 1841, Holy Trinity district church was built at Bromley Common, in the Gothic style. The living is a vicarage in the gift of the Bishop of Worcester, and held by the Rev. Arthur Rawson, M.A. The church of St. George, situate at Bickley, about a mile and a half east of Bromley, is a handsome modern building of stone, with a lofty spire and a clock; it was opened in September, 1864, and consecrated in July, 1865. It has a chancel with stained glass windows, nave, aisles, and transept, and has accommodation for 820. The living is a vicarage in the gift of George Wythes, Esq., of Bickley Hall. The Rev. E. H. Plumptre, M.A., is the vicar. The national schools are situate in the rear of Bromley College. An additional school was opened at Masons-hill in November, 1872.
A new national school has also been erected at Widmore. There are also national schools at Plaistow and Bromley Common. Bromley College is an establishment at the northern entrance of the town, which was endowed and founded by John Warner, D.D., Bishop of Rochester, in 1666, for the benefit of twenty poor widows of loyal and orthodox clergymen; the funds have been subsequently largely increased, so that forty widows have each an allowance of £38 per annum, and a separate and comfortable residence. The College consists of two quadrangles, built of brick, in the prevailing style of architecture of Charles II., which style has been imitated in the modern erections, so that the whole presents a uniform appearance. The chapel is a small consecrated building 37 feet long by 18 wide. The entire College occupies about four acres of ground laid down with turf and planted with trees. On the north eastern corner of the grounds stands Sheppard's College: it consists of five houses built nearly after the plan of those in the adjoining foundation, and affording similar accommodation. They are allotted to five maiden ladies, who have previously resided with their mothers in Bromley college. They receive a liberal allowance annually, together with gratuitous medical attendance. Mrs. Sheppard the founder of this charity, was the widow of the Rev. Dr. Shoppard, Fellow of Magdalen College. The Town Hall is a handsome structure, in the Elizabethan style of architecture, erected by the late Coles Child, Esq., on the site of the old Market place; under the central portion of the building a market is held every Thursday. The southern end of the building is occupied by a station for the metropolitan police. At the northern end accommodation is provided for the reading room and library of the Literary Institute. The other parts are occupied by the London and County Bank, and Messrs. Baxter and Payne, Auctioneers. The hall is 60 feet long by 32 feet wide; is open to the roof which rises to a height of 40 feet from the floor. The Drill Hall and Gymnasium, a large building erected in East-street, was opened on the 21st of May, 1872: it is 100 feet long by 40 feet wide, with retiring rooms. The hall is the Head Quarters of the 18th Kent Rifle Volunteers. There is also an efficient Volunteer Fire Brigade. There are two railway stations, on the London, Chatham, and Dover line, within ten minutes' walk of the town. The population taken at the last census (1871) was 10,674, being an increase of 5174 on that of 1861.

BECKENHAM.

This parish is situate 2 miles from Bromley, 10 from London, and 44 miles from Croydon, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Ruxley, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone. The name, compounded of two Saxon words, Bec, a brook, and Ham, a dwelling, is derived from a small stream that passes through the village and falls into the Ravensbourne. The parish is divided into three ecclesiastical districts, viz., St. George's (Parish Church), St. Paul's, New Beckenham, and St. Mary, Shortlands; there is also an Iron Room used as a chapel of ease at Elmers End, and a large school church in the new district called the Alexandra Cottages. The Parish Church was built about the beginning of the 15th century. The spire which was destroyed by lightning, was rebuilt in 1790. The present edifice, which has a tower, spire, and peal of six bells, was restored in 1864. The Rev. Wm. Cator, is rector; the living is in the gift of Albemarle Cator, Esq. The Church of St. Paul is a handsome spacious structure with a fine spire, near the New Beckenham Station; the living which is the gift of A. Cator, Esq., is held by the Rev. W. G. Wrightson, B.A. An Iron church was erected at the end of the Avenue in 1873. The Church of St. Mary is situate within a mile of Bromley, and is a very pretty structure with spire; the living is in the gift of Miss S. Wilkinson, and is held by the Rev. H. F. Wolley, M.A. Near the Parish Church on the Bromley road are three almshouses, erected by Anthony Rawlins in 1694. In 1837 the late Marchioness of Exeter bequeathed £1,100, the interest to be used for the purchase of coals for the poor in this parish. There is also an efficient Fire Brigade: the Engine house, which is situate in the centre of the village, is a handsome red brick building with clock tower. The London and County and the London and Provincial Bank have recently opened branches here. The Cottage Hospital is situate in the Elmers End Road near the entrance of the village: it was opened in March, 1872, and has accommodation for 12 patients; there are Public Baths and Wash-houses joining which were opened at the same time. The South Eastern, and the London, Chatham and Dover Railways join here. The population at the last census (1871) was 6090, being an increase on that of 1861 of 3699.

CHISLEHURST.

This parish is in the Western Division of the county of Kent, hundred of Ruxley, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone, and is situated 11 miles from London, 8 from Dartford, 3½ from Bromley, and 2 from St. Mary Cray. At the last census there were 3,307 inhabitants, being an increase of 1,021 on the census of 1861. The railway stations are—Chislehurst (S.E.R.) 1 mile; Eltham 3 miles, and Sidcup (North Kent Loop) 3 miles. The parish church, dedicated to St. Nicholas, is built of flint with a shingled spire, and the parish register dates as far back as 1558. The living is a rectory and in the gift of the Bishop of Worcester. The church of the Annunciation at Prickend was opened in 1870 as also the Wesleyan chapel on the Common. There is an Orphanage (St. Michael's) which has accommodation for 40 boys. A Roman Catholic Church, dedicated to St. Mary, is situated in Crown lane. The Governess's Benevolent Institution, situated on the right of the road leading from the Church to Pauls Cray Common, is a long neat building, with Secretary's house in centre; the foundation stone was laid, on the 4th of March, 1871, and the building was opened for occupation in the early part of 1872. Camden House is at present the seat of the Empress Eugenie. The Magistrates hold their sittings every third Monday in the month in a building recently erected at the top of Chislehurst hill; it is also used as a police station.

THIS parish is very pleasantly situate about 6 miles from Bromley, 16 from London and 2 from Farnborough, it is in the Western Division of the county, hundred of Ruxley, and lathe of Sutton-at-Hone. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary the Virgin, is a neat building in the Gothic style of architecture, and was restored in 1872 at a cost of £1,500, a handsome stained glass east window, consisting of three lights, by D. Bell of London, was added in 1874. The Church contains various sepulchral memorials of the Petlees, lords of the manor, from Edward III. to Hen. VIII., whose once sumptuous mansion has been pulled down and a modern residence erected. In the churchyard is a yew tree computed to be 700 years old. The parish register dates as far back as 1538. The living is a vicarage in the gift of the Rev. J. Brodie Innes, M.A., of Milton Brodie. The Rev. George Sketchley Ffinden, M.A., domestic chaplain to Lord Carington, is vicar. There is a good organ recently erected, and an endowed national school. The nearest railway stations are Orpington (S.E.R.), 3 miles; Bromley (L.C. & D.) 6 miles. The population at the last census (1871) was 526 being an increase of 30 on that of 1861.

HAYES.

This parish is situate about two miles from Bromley and 12 from London. The Church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, is early English, built of flint with oak shingle spire. It was restored in 1862 by Sir George Gilbert Scott architect, and a north aisle was added at the same time, the cost of which (£2500) was raised by a grant and subscription. The living is a rectory in the gift of the Archbishop of Canterbury, and is held by the Rev. G. V. Reed, M.A. Hayes Place, near the Church, the residence of E. Wilson, Esq., formerly a seat of the family of Scott, was rebuilt by the Earl of Chatham, and was the birthplace of his son, the Right Hon. William Pitt. The common is now managed by a board of conservators under the Commons Enclosure Act. The population at the census of 1871 was 621, being an increase of 23 on that of 1861. ST. MARY CRAY.

Located a parish situate 14 miles from London, 5 from Bromley, 10 from Sevenoaks and about 7 from Dartford, in the Western Division of the county, hundred of Ruxley, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone. The church of St. Mary, which is a very ancient edifice built of stones and flint, with shingled spire, was restored at a cost of £1,500. The living is in the gift of the Archbishop of Canterbury. There is an institute & reading-room. The Temple, used by the Independents as a place of worship was built by W. Joynson, Esq., and is a very pretty building. There is an excellent Volunteer Fire Brigade, under the superintendence of Mr. G. Styles. The population at the last census (1871) was 1,681, being an increase of 217 on the census of 1861. There is a station on the L. & S. Railway, situated at the north end of the village. The large paper mills of Messrs. Joynson adjoin the railway and give employment to about 700 persons.
