

Education, Health and Care Needs Assessment Eligibility Guidance

for parents and carers in Bromley

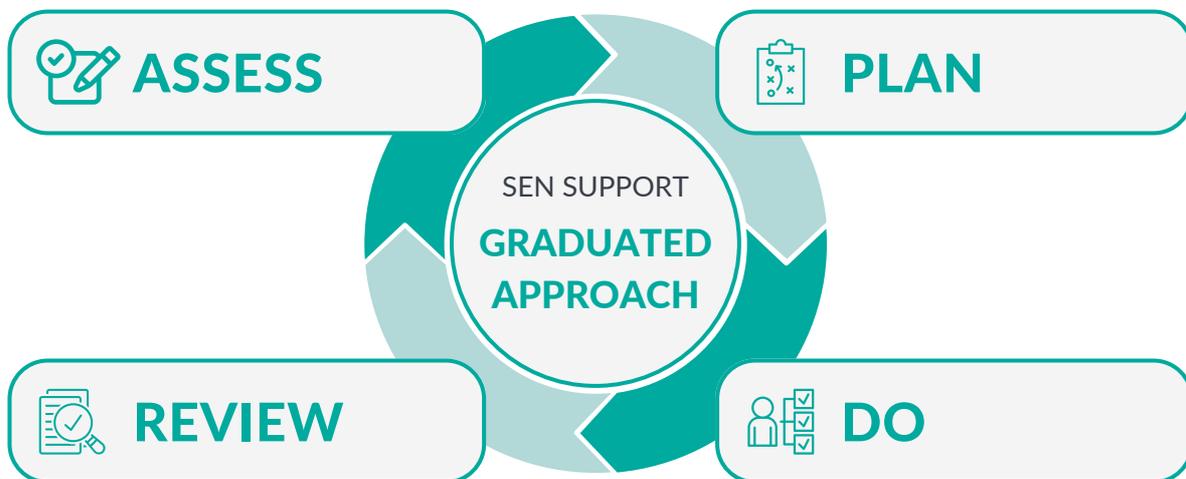

Introduction

The London Borough of Bromley works closely with educational settings and other partners to ensure that children and young people with special educational needs and disabilities (SEND) can access the right support at the earliest possible opportunity.

All pre-schools, schools and colleges are expected to meet the needs of children and young people with SEND and strive to be fully inclusive. Most children and young people with SEND receive support through high quality teaching/practice and interventions and provision offered at 'SEN Support' level, without the need for an Education, Health and Care (EHC) Plan.

Educational settings follow a Graduated Approach to meeting needs, using an Assess > Plan > Do > Review process.

This is outlined in the SEND Code of Practice 0-25 (2015) – statutory guidance published by the Department for Education (DfE).

Read more - visit:

gov.uk/government/publications/send-code-of-practice-0-to-25

Educational settings must make reasonable adjustments to avoid disadvantage and ensure children and young people can access learning and development. Children and young people with medical needs should be supported with their physical and mental health to remain healthy and achieve their potential.

It is essential to ensure that every relevant reasonable adjustment, intervention and high quality teaching/ practice have been put in place at SEN Support level, in support of a child or young person's learning, care and health needs.

'Many children and young people who have SEN may have a disability under the Equality Act 2010'. Education settings 'must make reasonable adjustments...to ensure that disabled children and young people are not at a substantial disadvantage compared with their peers. This duty is anticipatory'.

/ SEND Code of Practice 0-25 (2015)

Bromley's Medical Needs Policy sets out guidance in meeting statutory medical needs guidance:

bromleyeducationmatters.uk /Page/15859

The importance of high quality teaching and practice

- for children and young people with SEND

Special educational provision is underpinned by high quality teaching and is compromised by anything less

/ SEND Code of Practice 0-25 (2015)

Every teacher is a teacher of SEND. Teachers are responsible and accountable for the progress and development of the pupils in their class, including where pupils access support from teaching assistants or specialist staff. High quality teaching, adapted for individual pupils, is the first step in responding to pupils who have or may have SEND. A range of resources, support and guidance is available to all Bromley professionals.

High quality teaching involves daily decisions on the following elements:

- positive classroom organisation
- carefully planned resources
- strong lesson structure/delivery
- behaviour management
- optimal deployment of any support staff

Progress for all pupils is achieved by adjusting, adapting and assessing based on each child or young person's strengths and needs.

What is high quality practice in an Early Years setting?

The Early Years Foundation Stage (EYFS) requires that all children are allocated a keyworker. Practitioners must consider the individual needs, interests, and development of each child in their care, and must use this information to plan and adapt a challenging and enjoyable experience for each child in all areas of learning and development. In planning and guiding what children learn, practitioners must reflect on the different rates at which children are developing and adjust their practice appropriately. It is important that early delays or difficulties lead to the right sort of help and are not necessarily regarded as an indication of a long-term special educational need or disability. The SEND Code of Practice 0-25 (2015) states that if a child's progress in any prime area gives cause for concern, practitioners must discuss this with the child's parents and/or carers and agree how to support the child.

Identifying SEND

If a child or young person is not making good progress, despite high quality teaching, the teacher/practitioner will work with the SENCO to assess if they may have SEND.

Settings will gather evidence, including the views of parents/carers and children and young people, and keep parents informed at each stage. Support should be put in place immediately and not wait for the outcome of assessments. The teacher/practitioner remains responsible and accountable for the child or young person's progress and development.

If, following assessment a children and young people is identified as having SEND, the SEND Code of Practice 0-25 (2015) states that teachers/practitioners are required to remove barriers to learning and put effective special educational provision in place through SEN support.

What is a SENCO?

SENCO stands for Special Educational Needs Coordinator.

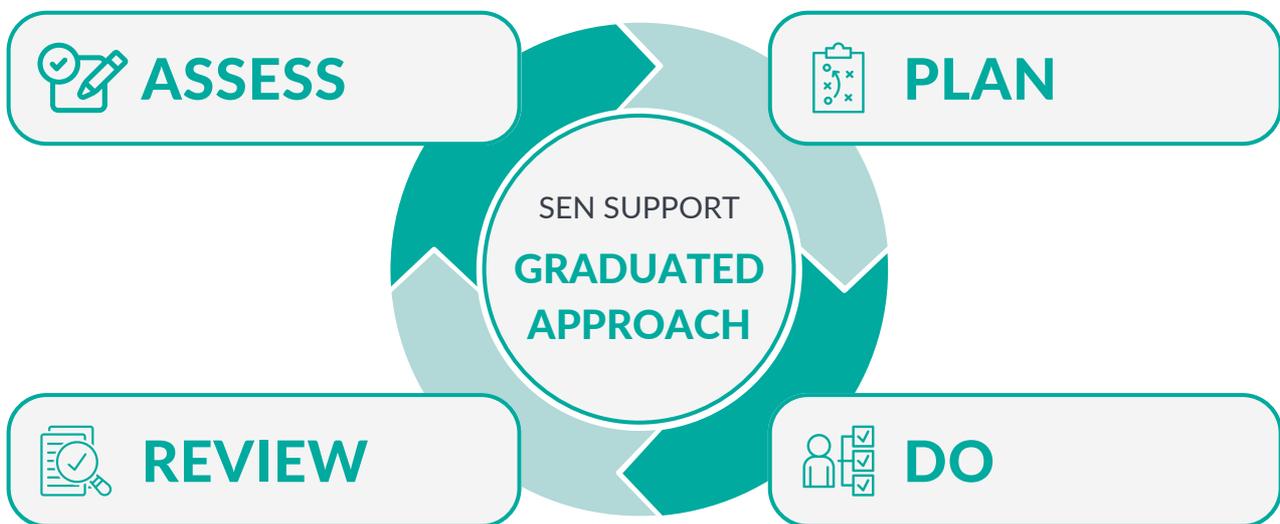

SENCOs, who must be a qualified teacher in mainstream schools, oversee the strategic development of SEN policy and provision and as such is advised to form part of the leadership team. In addition, they ensure the implementation of the SEN policy on a day-to-day basis.

How does SEN Support work and what is a 'Graduated Approach'?

How much help and the type of help a child or young person is given will be based on their individual assessed needs. It is important to remember that support is based on needs and not diagnosis.

A Graduated Approach has a cycle of four stages of action which are set out in the SEND Code of Practice 0-25 (2015):

Assess

This starts the process by assessing or analysing a child or young person's needs and identifying what support they might need.

Plan

A plan is made about what support to give a child or young person, when it should be given and what outcomes it should achieve.

Do

This means putting into practice the support that is in the plan.

Review

A review of how things are working and if the outcomes are being achieved. The review will inform and lead on to the next plan and the cycle continues as long as a child or young person needs the extra support.

The graduated approach 'draws on more detailed approaches, more frequent review and more specialist expertise in successive cycles in order to match interventions to the SEN of children and young people' SEND Code of Practice 0-25 (2015).

Parents and carers should be invited to termly meetings to discuss their child's progress.

For more information on the SEND Graduated Approach

Visit:

bromley.gov.uk/special-educational-needs/send-graduated-approach-framework

Eligibility for an EHC Plan in Bromley

Before an EHC Needs Assessment request is submitted, it is essential to ensure that all reasonable adjustments, interventions and high quality teaching/practice have already been put in place at SEN Support level and there is evidence to prove that it is not working in addressing the individual support needs.

In Bromley, the Council hold panel meetings to consider whether children and young people may require an EHC Needs Assessment.

These panel meetings consist of professionals across agencies who work with children and young people. They will review and discuss the documentation that has been submitted, whether it is from an educational setting or a parent, or another professional working with a child or young person.

The panel will also consider whether the child or young person's needs can be better met through other ways of supporting settings without needing an EHC Plan.

In reaching a decision the panel will make particular reference to the SEND Code of Practice 0-25 (2015) which states:

9.14 In considering whether an EHC needs assessment is necessary, the local authority should consider whether there is evidence that despite the early years provider, school or post-16 institution having taken relevant and purposeful action to identify, assess and meet the special educational needs of the child or young person, the child or young person has not made expected progress.

/ SEND Code of Practice 0-25 \(2015\)

Each individual case will be reviewed on its own merit.

To inform their decision the local authority will need to take into account a wide range of evidence, and will pay particular attention to:

Evidence of the child or young person's academic attainment (or developmental milestones in younger children) and rate of progress.

Information about the nature, extent and context of the child or young person's SEND.

Evidence of the Assess > Plan > Do > Review actions already being taken by the setting to meet the child or young person's SEND and where this has not been successful -

- Typically, three cycles of APDR and reviewed provision maps will provide robust evidence
- APDR cycles may not be necessary for a very high complexity of need

Evidence that, where progress has been made, that it has only been as the result of significant additional intervention/support over and above Ordinarily Available Provision.

Evidence of the child or young person's physical, emotional and social development and health needs, drawing on relevant evidence from clinicians and other health professionals and what has been done to meet these by other agencies.

Where a young person is aged over 18, the local authority must consider whether the young person requires additional time, in comparison to the majority of others of the same age who do not have special educational needs, to complete their education or training, achieve their education and training outcomes and prepare for adult life.

For more information on Ordinarily Available Provision

Visit:
bromleyeducationmatters.uk/Page/15652

Education, Health and Care Needs Assessment Eligibility Guidance

For more information, contact:
Children's Services
London Borough of Bromley
Civic Centre, Stockwell Close
Bromley BR1 3UH

